Simon Starr is an Australian bassist who has just birthed a new album, 27/04.

The album is the result of a 2 year collaboration with producer Alon Lotringer.

With influences like Paul Simon, Brian Eno, The Beatles and Miles Davis, the album tells true stories dressed in a devotion to beauty and a deep love for sound, the earth and life.

Starr arrived in Israel in 2009, and has since become one of the central bassists in the Israeli scene.

This first true love, for pop songs, is a part of his secret identity only now revealed.

Made to be an experience, the album draws a lot from the Slow Food philosophy. Switch on your good speakers, the ones you keep from the guests, and enjoy the rare beauty of 27/04.
